1. Narrative description of the Prop 28 arts education program(s) funded.
New Pacific Charter Rancho Cordova, used Prop 28 Arts and Music in Schools (AMS) funding to provide meaningful, standards aligned arts experiences to approximately 220 students throughout the school year. The program focused on ensuring that all students had regular opportunities to participate in music, visual arts, and collaborative creative projects.

Music instruction was provided through New Songs, which worked with all students on a weekly basis. These sessions provided students with opportunities to develop musical skills, explore rhythm and melody, and participate in music making as a school community.

Students also participated in hands on visual arts experiences through The Curious Brush on three occasions during the school year. These experiences allowed students to explore creativity, artistic expression, and collaboration. Projects included the creation of a collaborative dolphin art piece representing our school community, Kindness Rocks, and the design and artistic creation of picnic tables for individual classrooms. These projects encouraged students to work together, express themselves creatively, and create lasting artwork that could be displayed and used throughout the school.

Through these programs, Prop 28 funding expanded access to arts education for all students and provided opportunities for students to engage in music and visual arts that complemented their core academic instruction. The combination of weekly music instruction and hands on visual arts projects supported creativity, collaboration, self expression, and a strong sense of school community.
